

Case Study

Founded in 2014, Behavox is an AI-driven platform that transforms behaviour in financial workplace settings. Within four years of their founding, they had doubled in size year on year by 2018, climbing to become the fifth-fastest-growing company in the UK. With a view toward meeting revenue targets and preparing for an IPO, hiring decisions are critical.

By targeting Tier 1 banks in 2017/2018, Behavox were able to significantly increase their market presence, which allowed them to secure a $500m evaluation – an incredible feat for such a new company. With this success, however, came potential obstacles, such as how to manage customer expectations and implement solutions when bandwidth was at an all-time high.

Selected's Hiring Mandate

We were solicited by Behavox for support on 10 key hires in the UK and the Americas, seven of which were account management roles focused on aftercare, upselling, and cross-selling. With rapidly growing demand in the Fintech space, these hires were critical to Behavox and had to reflect emerging market demands among the world's largest financial institutions.

We were also required to find three implementation project managers for Behavox. These positions required vastly different skills to sales roles, such as technical implementation, project management, and customer negotiation. In these instances, we had to respond flexibly to support Behavox across the whole business.

Outcome/ROI

Within six months, we had achieved a total of 10 enterprise hires across the UK and the East Coast of America. Attrition has been low among them, with just one hire leaving Behavox since 2018. This is a particularly good result given the unique pressures of the Fintech space, where new start-ups struggle with staffing solutions in the early stages of growth.

At a critical stage in their development where the demands of rapid growth required responsive hiring strategies, we were able to support Behavox and make targeted acquisitions that would prove lasting. In doing so, we supported Behavox with customer retention, paving the way for a successful IPO in the near future.

“Their ability to understand what was required of them and execute at pace was superb”

Alex Wood,
Chief Commercial
Officer

“Finding a recruitment partner who can work across the breadth of an enterprise software company is a very rare, at Behavox we were fortunate enough to find exactly that!”

Selected were engaged by Behavox at a time when we were experiencing a hyper growth phase, the Selected team were able to help define requirements right across the Sales / Account Management and complex post Delivery teams.

Their ability to understand what was required of them and execute at pace was superb, the candidate qualification and ability to run a high level effective sales process optimized management time and enabled us to focus more on doing deals safe in the knowledge we had a trusted partner who understood our business.

I highly recommend this agency and look forward to working with Harry and the rest of the Selected team again.”
